

The death of a loved one is a very difficult time.

Sometimes, for all sorts of reasons, we don't feel able to talk about the situation to those around us. Perhaps we'd like to talk with others in a similar position. Or we simply may not have anyone to talk with.

A place with comfort and a listening ear might be welcome. Our bereavement support services can help you connect with others dealing with grief and loss, or with those who are at ease around the subject.

Please note - our services are for adults rather than young people.

Building community, one conversation at a time.

Compassionate Communities works around Coventry and Warwickshire to bring people together. Creating conversations and connections, we help people support one another where and when it's needed.

If you want to speak about your grief...

try our bereavement support

Bereavement Point

Drop in groups run by paid staff and trained volunteers. A space where you can talk openly, to experienced and caring facilitators and others living with grief. There are several Coventry and Warwickshire locations, and an online meeting.

Dates and locations can be subject to change. Find out about forthcoming meeting dates via our Eventbrite listings - use the handy QR code below.

Or, you can contact us via phone or email if you prefer.

Befrienders

Be matched with trained volunteers who can visit you in your home or other appropriate place.

It's important to say - our volunteers aren't bereavement counsellors. Rather, they are caring individuals who want to offer support and listening as a "good neighbour" and be a companion as you journey with your grief.

Contact us to request a befriender or ask more about it.

Our volunteers

All our volunteers undergo recruitment and selection through the University Hospitals Coventry and Warwickshire NHS Trust, and complete specific training within the Compassionate Communities team.

All volunteers hold an Enhanced Child and Adult Workforce Disclosure and Barring Service Certificate - usually referred to as a DBS check.
