Other Comments Received

“There are problems with repeat prescriptions being signed off by the Doctor on time. I had to wait an age and was without medicine for the weekend.”

“Have to get through reception and a nurse before get to see a GP.”

“I have a problem with the nurse who does the triage - can’t get through to Doctor.”

“Have spoken to Practice Manager about issues with one of the nurses. May move surgeries because of this.”

“It’s a great surgery with exceptional service. I like everything about it and particularly having the dispensary. I also like that GPs come out to get you, patients’ suggestion box available.”

PPG Comments:

The PPG is keen to ensure that the surgery works well by trying to raise patients’ awareness of the pressures on services and by working to help the GPs.

It was raised with us that the dispensary can only provide medication to some patients, whilst others, because of their postcodes must walk past the dispensary and travel to another town to collect their prescriptions from a supermarket dispensary. This is unsatisfactory and inconvenient for those patients who fall into this category. It must be said that this is NOT the fault of the surgery and is the result of laws relating to pharmacy provision that Meon is unable to change.

Recommendations

- A 75 + group has been established that provides targeted support for those who are elderly and isolated. An information booklet has been provided and on Friday afternoon a ‘mosaic stitching’ session takes place on the premises. We recommend that this programme develops, as it fits with current thinking about preventative care with the frail and elderly.
- The surgery has implemented a Triage system. This makes sense and is seen as good practice in that it attempts to steer patients to the correct service. However, we found that patients were either unclear about this service or, found it frustrating due to questions that they are asked (to determine the nature of their condition) and waiting for telephone calls from the nurse. We recommend that the surgery looks into concerns raised by patients in order to review the current system. It should be noted that Meon’s Summer 2015 newsletter clearly explains the new triage system.
- Several patients reported that they have to wait for their appointments once they arrive at the surgery and as a consequence the surgery scored poorly in this area. However on the day that we visited we did not observe any delays and indeed noted that the GPs /nurses called patients personally. A tannoy system is provided but the surgery prefers this method as it is seen as more personal. We recommend that if there are days when delays build up a system should be implemented to advise waiting patients if there is not one already. We note that patients also stated that they understand why delays can occur and respected that some patients would have acute needs.

Surgery Response

Response by Johnson Clarke, Practice Manager.

Further to your visit in September, I can confirm that our 75+ group project is going from strength to strength. Our Mosaic class organised by our over 75 coordinator Amanda Cogley, aimed at combating loneliness amongst the over 75s, is now looking to expand.

We are currently undergoing an audit of our triage system to see where we can improve on our service and ensure best practice for our patients. We will involve our patient group in developing any changes and ensure that we communicate with all of our patients via the practice website.

We always endeavour to strike the right balance between offering a comprehensive and caring service whilst trying to run on time. We have recently increased the number of surgeries offered to alleviate the pressure on appointments. We will always try to update patients face to face when they arrive if there are any likely delays. Some patients may present with a particularly complex problem which will require a more detailed analysis causing a delay to the appointment system. However, we believe that our Meon GP's do an excellent job in giving the right amount of time and care with a patient when needed. Although it can be frustrating for any patients that might have to wait, we would hope as we believe they do, that they appreciate the reasons behind this.
